IFP School has just been awarded the "4Digital" label for digital excellence by the Conférence des grandes écoles (CGE) for four years. This distinction recognizes the School's mastery of digital technology, particularly in the area of teaching and distance learning. This label will enable the School to offer part of its Specialized Masters® courses in distance learning and also to consider developing new Specialized Masters® in this hybrid format.

"In recent years, the digitalization of IFP School has accelerated tremendously thanks to the long-standing and daily commitment of our teachers, the IT Center staff and the team of the Lab e·nov™, the digital culture laboratory, and also thanks to our material investments. The School's staff has acquired specific educational skills for distance learning. We are very proud of this recognition!" says Christine Travers, Dean of IFP School.
